(Sponsa:)

Osculétur me ósculo oris sui;
quia melióra sunt úbera tua vino,
fragrántia unguéntis óptimis.
Óleum effúsum nomen tuum;
ídeo adolescentulae dilexérunt te.

(Chorus adolescentularum:)

Trahe me, post te currémus in odórem unguentórum tuórum.
Introdúxit me rex in cellária sua.
Exsultábimus et laetábimus super vinum.¹
Recti dílignunt te.

CANTUS FIRMUS:

Tota pulchra es, amíca mea,
et mácula non est in te.
Favus distíllans lábia tua;
mel et lac sub lingua tua.
Odor unguentórum tuórum
super ómnia arómata.

(Bride:)

*Let him kiss me with the kiss of his mouth,
for thy breasts are better than wine,
smelling sweet of the best ointments.
Thy name is as oil poured out,
therefore young maidens have loved thee.*

(Chorus of young maidens:)

*Draw me: we will run after thee to the odour of thy ointments.
The king hath brought me into his chambers.
We will be glad and rejoice over wine.¹
The righteous love thee.*

*Thou art all fair, my love;
and there is no spot in thee.
Thy lips drop as the honeycomb;
honey and milk are under thy tongue.
The sweet smell of thy ointments is above all manner of spices.*

(Antiphon for Feast Days of the Blessed Virgin Mary)

from Song of Songs 1:1–3, 4:7 & 11

¹ The original biblical text is ‘... et laetabimus in te, memores uberum tuorum super vinum’ (... and rejoice in thee, we will remember thy breasts more than wine). The curious omission of those five words in this setting is consistent in all part books in the source and imparts a rather different and somewhat comical meaning that might find a logical basis in the motet’s potential connection to the Spanish royal wedding in 1543 (see Editorial Notes overleaf).

Pierre de Manchicourt, a contemporary of Nicolas Gombert and Jacobus Clemens non Papa, was active in both Burgundy and Spain during the reigns of Charles V and Phillip II, culminating in his appointment by the latter as maestro de capilla flamenca in Madrid in 1559. The fact that Attaingnant, publisher of the French Royal Court, devoted his fourteenth and final volume of motets in 1539 entirely to Manchicourt's work (an honour he bestowed on no other, and emulated by Flemish publishers Susato and Phalèse in 1545 and 1554 respectively) bears testament to the composer's reputation in his day. Manchicourt's highly polyphonic style of composition lost favour around the time of his death, as the liturgical reforms of the Council of Trent took hold — marking the transition from the High Renaissance to the less florid Late-Renaissance style of Victoria and Palestrina.

This motet — one of seven settings of the Song of Songs among Manchicourt's output of more than seventy motets — was published in Phalèse's 1554 collection (and its 1558 and 1560 reprints). As an apparently later work, it exemplifies the composer's mastery of complex polyphony, though structurally the motet employs a technique from the previous generation of High-Renaissance composers: a cantus firmus in the Tenor voice, surrounded by five other freely composed parts. The text of the cantus firmus is also from the Song of Songs, but the melody is taken from a popular German song Kein Adler in der Welt so schön schwebt ('No eagle in the world soars so beautifully'). Thomas Crecquillon based a mass on the same model, published in 1545, and the melody is also quoted in motets by a number of other contemporary Franco-Flemish composers — all of whom, like Manchicourt, had some connection with the various Hapsburg courts that dominated Europe in the sixteenth century.

Martin Ham² postulates that these motets and Crecquillon's mass may have been composed for the 1543 wedding of Phillip of Spain to Maria Manuela of Portugal: the biblical text of Manchicourt's motet (including the rather odd variation in the penultimate line) seems well suited to such an occasion, and the original text of Kein Adler contains many regal inferences — indeed, the eagle itself (in double-headed form) is the centrepiece of the emblem of the House of Hapsburg. Based on this theory, Manchicourt's motet may well have been composed more than a decade earlier than its first known publication.

Editorial Notes:

This edition is set at the original notated pitch. Editorial accidentals are indicated above the note. Original note values are retained: thus, consistent with 16th-century convention, the $\dot{\text{C}}$ mensuration sign and its modern-equivalent $\dot{\text{C}}$ time signature signify a semibreve tactus. Bar lines are added only to aid reading and direction: 'strong' and 'weak' beats implied by their position should never take precedence over phrasing or word stress. Ligatures and coloration in the source are acknowledged with overarching square brackets and open 'corner' brackets respectively. Word underlay reflects editorial judgment and is freely adjusted. Re-iterated text implied by an 'ij' marking or incomplete phrase in either source is indicated in italic; editorial re-iteration appears in (brackets). Where implied by (or considered preferable for) word underlay, conjoining of notes split across a line break in the original is indicated with a dashed tie.
