

Philip Doddridge, 1755
(Hymn 41) 66. 66. 44. 44.

Lynn

Transcribed from The Harmonist's Companion, 1797.

G minor
Daniel Belknap, 1797

1. Loud to the Prince of heaven Your cheer-ful voi - ces raise; To him your vows be
2. Gird on thy con-quer-ing sword, A - scend thy shi - ning car, And march, al-migh-ty
3. Fair truth, and smi-ling love And in-jured right - eous - ness In Thy re - ti-nue
4. Be - fore thine aw-ful face Mil - lions of foes shall fall; The cap - tives of thy
5. Here to my wil-ling soul Bend thy tri-um - phant way; Here eve - ry foe con -

given, And fill his courts with praise; With con - scious worth All clad in arms, Lord, To wage thy ho - ly war; Be - fore his wheels, in glad sur - prise, move, And seek from thee re - dress; Thou in their cause Shalt pros - perous ride, grace, That grace which con- quers all: The world shall know, Great King of kings, trol, And all thy power dis - play; My heart, thy throne, Blest Je - sus, see

All bright in charms He sal - lies forth.
Ye val - leys rise, And sink, ye hills.
And far and wide Dis - pense thy laws.
What won - drous things Thine arm can do.
Bows low to thee, To thee a - lone.