Source is "A General History of the Science and Practice of Music" by Sir John Hawkins, page 370 in the 1853 edition. Lyrics have been altered to follow modern editions of this poem, except that "Rutterkin" is contracted to "Ruttkin" rather than "Rutter". According to Hawkins and others the song is a satire on the drunken Flemings who came to England with Anne of Cleves on her marriage to King Henry VIII, but both Cornish and Skelton had died over a decade before that event. The OED indicates that "rutterkin" means "a swaggering gallant or bully" and that "hoyda" or "heyday" is "an exclamation of gaiety or amusement".
